

Christmas At Sea

Celebrity Solstice sailing from Sydney December 23, 2018
Balcony Cabin from $3,599 per person

Leave the Christmas tree in its box, put down the decorations, and pack the bags. Spend a Christmas celebrating in style, at sea. Christmas is a wonderful time of the year. And while some people associate the holiday with quintessential home comforts, things are just as festive on the high seas. If you're thinking about spending December 25th at sea, here is a sneak peek of what to expect...

Mouth-watering dining

For those who love to indulge in a traditional Christmas dinner, cruise ships won't disappoint. Expect a table overflowing with succulent roast turkey, golden roast potatoes, juicy cranberry sauce and all the trimmings. And the best thing? Everything is served to you by attentive wait staff which means zero Christmas day washing up. Bonus!

Festive themed entertainment

Forget carol recitals at your local church. Christmas cruisers enjoy access to world-class entertainment with a special festive theme. There are plenty of Christmas stage shows to feast your eyes on while many lines also offer festive arts and crafts sessions, seasonal cooking workshops, talent shows, Christmas movie screenings, activities, and deck parties

Holiday decorations

Like any good Christmas host, cruise ship lines go all out when it comes to decking the halls with holiday decorations. There will usually be a full-scale Christmas tree in the central public dining area or lobby, as well as an abundance of other ornaments and embellishments scattered throughout the ship.

"This Australian/New Zealand cruise is one I can highly recommend, having cruised on this ship several times and at Christmas time - it's as close as possible to getting a Northern Hemisphere Christmas only but in the Southern Hemisphere!"
